26th Sunday in Ordinary Time A-2014

From the Pastor

My brothers and sisters in the Lord,

In reading the Gospel today, we recount the startling nature of Christ's teaching if we were to substitute for "tax collectors and prostitutes," our own pet peeves among the ways in which people make money. Tax collectors now are civil servants, prostitutes are often victims more than wrong doers; so maybe we could imagine Jesus saying that the drug dealers, greedy bankers or what-ever group we feel morally superior to in our world today, make their way into the kingdom before us. The tax collectors and prostitutes listened to John the Baptist because they were aware that their professions were despised. They knew what they were. It was because of the chief priest and the Pharisees that their position in society made them to themselves. The priests and Pharisees saw other people, such as the tax collectors and prostitutes, not as real persons, but as representatives of types of people - - sinners. On the opposite side, they saw themselves as certain types of people who, in their minds, were respectable and understanding of their true selves.

What attracted the social outcasts to St. John the Baptist was not so much what he said as the fact that someone was actually speaking to them at all. This gave them the opportunity to repent. The people who would not repent were those who did not even consider the possibility of repentance. Perhaps the shock of the crucifixion may have woken some priests up to their real need for repentance. In the Acts of the Apostles, we are told that many priests became obedient to the faith. Their part in the death of Christ opened them up to the reality of their own sins, and the resurrection of Jesus showed the possibility of redemption.

We must realize and acknowledge that prayer is preparation and prayer is also repentance. Sooner or later we will be challenged by life. We can never say that we have fought our final battle, so we pray before and after each trial. The first son in today's story is not described as praying but he is very much like the prodigal son in St. Luke who is said to have "entered into himself." The phrase is actually translated as, "he came to his senses." When we pray, that is exactly what we do. We enter into ourselves and discover that we are not what we think we are. We are told to pray constantly not to be put to the test, but we are also to pray after we have failed the test. And yet they still had many trials, even after the resurrection. There is always one more thing. Someone once said, "Experience is something you think you have, until you get more of it."

These past days we have been celebrating our annual (23rd) Feast in honor of our Maria SS. Addolorata (Our Lady of Sorrows). Today we continue the celebration beginning with the noon Mass and procession through the streets and festival ending this evening at 9:00PM with our Super 50/50 raffle drawing. Please take some time today and join us in honoring our Lady of Sorrows as well as meeting old friends and making new friends with good entertainment and great food. Best wishes to our next winner of the super 50/50 raffle.

I would like to share the following news with you. His Grace, Archbishop John Joseph Myers, recently nominated me as a member of the Equestrian Order of the Holy Sepulchre of Jerusalem. I am truly humbled by this honor bestowed by Our Holy Father Pope Francis. I just wanted to let you know that the reason you may have not seen me during certain times at the festival was because the Vigil ceremony took place on Friday evening September 26, and the actual installation, yesterday, September 27. I needed to be present at both events and, for this reason, was unable to be present at the festival. I ask for your prayers, not only for me but for all who were given this special honor.

As always, I entrust Fr. John and Fr. Mauro with the responsibility of caring for our parish whenever I am absent. They are good and holy priests with many gifts and talents to be shared with all of us, as well as the special treasure of their vocations. Please pray for all priests!

Peace,
Fr. Joe
